Management Bios

Tim Jenkins

Tim co-founded Point B in 1995. He has worked on a wide spectrum of projects for clients in numerous industries, including telecommunications, distribution, healthcare, and insurance. Today, Tim provides overall direction to the development of Point B's people, culture and brand. His earlier career included serving as director of information technology for Children's Hospital & Regional Medical Center (Seattle) and as a manager at Accenture (formerly Andersen Consulting) in its Seattle office. Tim holds a BA in Economics, magna cum laude, from the University of Washington, and an MBA in Finance and Marketing from the University of Chicago. He loves to spend his free time skiing with his family and coaching youth sports.

Darran Littlefield

One of Point B's co-founders, Darran has an extensive and varied background helping organizations develop and use information technology to solve business problems. He has applied his consulting skills across several industries, including healthcare, financial services, insurance, high-tech and the public sector. Today, Darran's primary focus is to further develop Point B's client service delivery practices. Before joining Point B, he was employed by Freed Consulting, a healthcare consultancy based in the San Francisco Bay Area. Prior to working at Freed, he was a manager at Accenture (formerly Andersen Consulting) in its San Francisco Health Care Practice. He holds a BS in Business Administration (MIS Concentration) from California Polytechnic State University, San Luis Obispo. Darran enjoys coaching youth sports, waterskiing, golf and spending as much time as possible with his family.

Jim Hodge

Jim is one of Point B's co-founders. He has served a variety of private- and public-sector clients, where he focused on information systems planning, integration, development, management and rollout. Jim has also successfully helped address supply chain management issues for manufacturers, retailers and distribution companies. Before joining Point B, Jim worked on a variety of assignments as a manager at Accenture (formerly Andersen Consulting) in its Northern California practice. He holds a BS in Business Administration from the University of the Pacific. In his free time, Jim likes to play golf, attend the opera and travel internationally.
